Up Your Glock .380 Capacity

One of the benefits of Glock's popular 42 single-stack pistol is that it can be carried and concealed easily, making it a solid option as a personal-defense pistol. That comes with a few trade-offs, though, such as lower magazine capacity and a shorter grip frame that can be hard to grasp for shooters with larger hands. The Tangodown & Vickers Tactical Glock 42 Magazine Extension solves both of these issues. The Tangodown & Vickers Tactical Glock 42 Magazine Extension is designed as an extended floorplate made from injection-molded polymer that matches the material used on factory Glock magazines. The shape of the floorplate extension allows users to get a solid firing grip on the gun, and the extra space provided by the extended plate provides two extra rounds of .380 ACP in the gun. Color: black Includes stainless-steel magazine spring Fits Glock G42 only Color: black Each Tangodown & Vickers Tactical Glock 42 Magazine Extension kit includes an extended floorplate, floorplate retainer and a new magazine spring.
