Bullets Designed for Extreme Long-Range Shooting

Long-range precision-rifle matches are taking off, as manufacturers produce match-grade guns at prices that more of today's budget-minded shooters can afford. However, punching paper or ringing steel at distance requires the right round, and that's why Berger Bullets created its Extreme Long Range Match Solid projectiles. Fans of extreme long-range shooting are pushing their platforms to two miles and beyond, thanks to cutting-edge targeting and rifle technology. Now, with Berger's help, the ammunition is there, too! These rounds are lathe-turned from solid copper and feature an optimized VLD ogive design to provide accuracy for miles-long shots. Berger Bullets ELR Match Solid projectiles will be available in .375-caliber, with 379-grain and 407-grain offerings both available. Quantities of 50 bullets are sold per pack.
