An AR Grip for Your Large Hands

Don't you hate not being able to find an AR grip that fits those oversized mitts of yours? Magpul's got you covered. The company's K2-XL grip shares many of the same features as Magpul's original MOE-K2 grip design, but it's almost 25 percent bigger than the original. Despite this increased size, the Magpul K2-XL Grip is a drop-in fit for any mil-spec AR-15 lower receiver, giving you the proper grip you need for better control and more accurate shooting. Designed with an angle that's more vertical than most grips, the Magpul K2-XL Grip is purpose-built to move your hand in closer to your body on rifles with a short length of pull. This give you greater comfort and more control, which ultimately helps you make the shots that count. The grip is designed with Magpul's unique Trapezoidal Surface Projections, which enhance control and traction, even in the worst environments you'll find. And when you're in these rough environments, the K2-XL includes a unique XL grip cap that comes with an oil bottle, so you keep your gun running. The Magpul MOE K2-XL Grip is available in black, flat dark earth and OD green, and it's made right here in the USA.
