The ACC (Adjustable Core Competition) Chassis was created with an integrated weight management system, allowing shooters to fine tune the weight and balance point of the rifle. The adjustability comes from a series of weights that can be added to either the buttstock, interior forend or exterior forend. It's original weight of 2,7 kg transforms into a maximum of 5,6 kg (chassis only - add on your action, barrel, scope and accessories and most shooters are pushing 12-14 kg in the ACC).
